The alt-right youth movement

Everyone across the world is now talking about the alt-right youth movement. It's a new younger right-wing youth movement that encompasses various groups in the USA and Europe. The term was coined by Richard Spencer. A recent survey estimates that there are around 4 million people, mostly under age 30, in the alt-right in the USA and Europe.

Below are some never-before-seen resources some journalists compiled on the alt-right youth movement.

ON THE ALT RIGHT

The above is one of the earliest articles describing the alt-right. You should read it. It has much insight.

RELIGION

While many alt-righters are neopagan or atheist, some subscribe to Pro-Western Christianity.

Here's a resource on Pro-Western Christianity:

EUROPEAN INFLUENCE

Many in the alt-right have been influenced by identitarianism and archeofuturism:

IDENTITY

The alt-right describes itself as an identitarian movement for white people. Who does it define as white? Their answer is very straight-forward: People who genetically cluster with Europe:

They also note that most Americans are genetically white:
